Page Three

Anna is making her Page Three debut, but could this be the last time we see her Waterhole colleague Soraida here? Only time will tell.

Ewa in Players is no stranger to this page, but it's Rosa's first time on Page Three!

I couldn't resist taking a photo of Sharon playing her squeeze box in the Blarney Stone.

The Editor's Bit

I really should start thinking about the cover a bit earlier each month if I'm going to challenge you with a Cover Competition. I think I'll give it a miss this month, unless you can guess what I was subconsciously thinking when I took it. I don't know myself, so the answer could be anything; I've thought of one possibility, but I'm open to other ideas. I'll award an Honourable Mention to anybody who can come up with something that's either plausible or makes me laugh.

The Stun's 25th Anniversary Party in Molly Malone's was a rip-roaring success and everybody had a great time; Joanie's 'special' chocolates went down particularly well. My photos of the party are on pages 16 & 17, but here's one that Jennie took of me.

Olivia and Fritz, formerly of Olly De Quartz, were in town for a short holiday, but just missed the Stun party, so I had a photo taken with them in Maloe Melo.

I went to the Halloween party in the Waterhole dressed as a "Blood-sucking Brexit Bastard". MC Rory was Ziggy Stardust.

All the usual stuff is here, so enjoy your Stun!

Digging into the Stun archives, I came across this photo from 20 years ago of the “new girl” in the Stone’s Café; she works in Susie’s Saloon now, but surely she was too young to work in a bar when I took this one.

WINTER KILLS...

Today I turned my clock back an hour.

I guess that means winter is creeping uninvited into Amsterdam, and it’s time to trade the terraces and long sunny walks of summer for my usual winter amusements.

Time to lock myself in and write long boring stories to accompany my long boring videos, and practice assorted musical instruments, staring in the mirror, as I dance around the house naked on the heated floors that I refuse to share with the shivering masses freezing outside my door.

I know they’re only trying to get in out of the cold, and lord knows I have enough space for them, but I’m not that generous. Every year I feel guilty, and every year I do the same damned thing.

In the olden days, I used to rant and stomp, and chase them away, whacking them viciously with a broom, until a few years ago, I found an easier, more organic method of getting rid of them. I graduated to poisoning the miscreants. They only problem is that they would die in inconvenient places, slowly rotting away, swollen and stinky until they decomposed and disappeared in a final burst of olfactory unpleasantness.

This year, I’m trying a more socially acceptable way of dealing with the problem.

I summoned the angel of death to visit the space behind the refrigerator (a favourite hiding place) to announce the coming purge. The victims fell on their knees and made their peace with their deities while I carefully prepared their last meal of assorted yummy things and served them up in traps around the house.

Maybe next year I’ll do something sensible, like get a cat, but for now, this is the most I can do to rid myself of the pesky mousies.

I was really pleased that Mosquito were available to play at the Stun's 25th Anniversary Party in Molly Malone's.

Jim Maguire was at the party and got up on stage to sing a few songs with Mosquito.

Ciaran Wynne & Guests were in town for a couple of gigs, one of them in the Blarney Stone.

Lamar Chase spent a lot of his 65th birthday party on stage in Maloe Melo.

The Soap Girls had their European tour finale in Maloe Melo; it must have been a tough tour because their stage gear was in bits.

25 Years of the

The very first Amsterdam Stun came out of my printer on the 16th October 1993, and 25 years later, we're still going strong, so I had to throw a party! Molly Malone's was the venue, Mosquito were on stage and a lot of old friends were there to celebrate the occasion with me.

Amsterdam Stun

Lamar's Birthday

Blues man Lamar Chase celebrated his 65th birthday in Maloe Melo, the Home of the Blues

I was at a funeral today when I asked the priest for the Wi-Fi password.

He said, "Please, show some respect for the departed."

I asked, "Is that all in lower case and without spaces?"

The biggest mistake I ever made was asking a Mafia hit-man to take care of my cat while I was away.

A pirate visited his doctor, concerned about the moles on his back.

"It's OK" said the doctor, "they're benign".

"Count em again" said the pirate, "there be at least ten".

I don't agree with the new law on not smoking in a car with under 18's in it. Last week my kids got soaking wet in the rain while I was having a fag in the car. They were literally banging on the windows begging me to let them in, but as I explained to them, it's illegal.

This guy sat next to me on the train pulled out a photo of his wife and said, "She's beautiful, isn't she?"

I said, "If you think she's beautiful, you should see my girlfriend mate!"

He said, "Why? Is she a stunner?"

I said, "No, she's an optician!"

I had a large Domino's pizza delivered to the pub last night. As I sat there with the box on the table in front of me, the landlord came over and said, "You'll have to take that out if you want to eat it."

I said, "I know mate, I'm hardly going to chew it through the cardboard!"

I fell over at a fancy dress party last night, breaking a table on my fall. The barmaid shouted, "You'd better fix that!"

"It's just a costume," I replied. "I'm not really Bob the Builder!"

JOKES

I recently entered a competition to see who had gained the most weight and lost the most hair. Obviously, it wasn't called that. It was advertised as a 'School Reunion'.

Gave this girl my number last week; she said she'll call me when she gets home. I'm starting too think she's homeless.

I bought a packet of those 'Everlasting Gob-stoppers' as a child and twenty-five years on, they're still going strong. On closer inspection, it turns out I actually bought a bag of marbles.

A man was leaving a convenience store with his morning coffee when he noticed a most unusual funeral procession approaching the nearby cemetery. A black hearse was followed by a second black hearse about fifty feet behind the first one. Behind the second hearse was a solitary man walking a dog on a leash. Behind him, a short distance back, were about 200 men walking single file. The man couldn't stand the curiosity. He respectfully approached the man walking the dog and said: "I am so sorry for your loss, and this may be a bad time to disturb you, but I've never seen a funeral like this. Whose funeral is it?"

"My wife's."

"What happened to her?"

"She yelled at me and my dog attacked and killed her."

He inquired further, "But who is in the second hearse?"

The man answered, "My mother-in-law. She was trying to help my wife when the dog turned on her."

A very poignant and touching moment of brotherhood and silence passed between the two men. "Can I borrow the dog?"

The man replied, "Get in line."

BEING FRANK ON FOOTBALL

We begin with the news that here in the Netherlands, PSV are taking the Eredivisie by storm and lead arch rivals Ajax by a clear five points, and with a far superior goal difference, we could technically call it six!

Feyenoord currently occupy third spot, but are already ten points adrift of the leaders and this has perhaps influenced Robin van Persie in his decision to hang up his boots at the end of this campaign. "If we cannot win the title then what is the point of it all. I need to be motivated and although it is fun to return to Rotterdam, this is not what I came into football for. It was to win trophies," he explained to a local newspaper.

The news from the east of the country is that Groningen find themselves at the bottom of the table, having hit a rotten run of form. NAC Breda and newly promoted Emmen, are the other strugglers after ten matches gone.

And talking of strugglers, Ipswich Town parted company with manager Paul Hurst last week and in his five earlier appointments, he had never been shown the door! Hurst had just 14 Championship matches to prove his worth to reclusive owner Marcus Evans.

Sadly, a spate of injuries to key players and a lack of fire- power up front, sowed the seeds of discontent at Portman Road and his one solitary win was at Swansea 2-3, but it was not enough to unloosen the noose.

I don't normally feel sorry for football managers because they generally do very nicely thank you, but on this occasion I did feel some sympathy. He had inherited a squad from former gaffer Mick McCarthy that was not fit for purpose. Three important midfielders were still on the treatment table when Hurst arrived on the scene and even now they remain sidelined.

Then he recruited Jon Walters on a season long loan, but he hobbled off in only his second competitive match, against Norwich, with an Achilles tendon problem, which will take the best part of six months to fix.

Ipswich Town have only had 17 professional managers since they became a professional club in 1936 and even the new 'Howard Hughes' is usually a bit more patient than this. Finding themselves at the bottom of the Championship table and still continuing to lose was quite decisive I feel, and Hurst tried too hard to change things too quickly – recruiting a number of players from lower divisions, who found it difficult to step up to the plate.

Your guide to the Best Sports Bars around Amsterdam

www.livearoundamsterdam.com

But Evans must take his share of the blame too. He interviewed both Frank Lampard and Steven Gerrard, along with a host of other potential candidates, but his five-point plan – which involved recruiting from within and playing attractive attacking football, fitted with the football ideology of Paul Hurst, and he had to wait until after his former club Shrewsbury played and lost their play-off final for a place in the Championship, before he could get the man that was at the very top of his wish list.

This worked against Hurst too, because we were already into the second week of May before he had a chance to meet his players, and the planning for the new football season was already in full swing for other clubs.

Now journeyman Paul Lambert has been appointed, having coasted through his first press conference like a fanfare for the common man!

He is the first Ipswich boss to have successfully managed Norwich City too, and those of us with long memories might recall this is his favourite hunting ground as he managed Colchester United for 47 games also, so he knows the territory very well!

As for Jose Mourinho and Manchester United, my football prophesy that he would probably be gone before this column was released this month did not bear fruit.

He is living dangerously though, but still hanging on by his fingernails as this goes to print.

In Memory of Billy Cairns

♥ 17 March 1958 ~ 2nd October 2018 †

It came as a shock when I heard that Billy, one of the first people I got to know when I came to Amsterdam, had passed away. Although he had been racked with pain for a number of years, I don't know how much that contributed to his death. The last time I spoke to him was in June, when he called to say he couldn't make it to the scattering of Elly's ashes. I said I would visit him soon, but I never made it.
