Arjola and Sharita were behind the bar for the last party in the Magpie before they had to close.

It seems like whenever we have a photo of Anna from Hotel Torenzicht on Page Three, her friend Laura is working in Hotel Koopermolen when I deliver the latest Stun, so I have to take a photo of her; we don't see enough of Laura since she moved out to the sticks.

Let's hope we can see Marta and Mara on the terrace when Coco's Outback reopens on Monday 1st June.

Lock-down seemed a world away when Soraida and Ema posed for this photo, but it will be a while before the Waterhole has live music and more than 100 people in the bar, without social distancing, again.

The Editor's Bit

closed, there wouldn't be anywhere for you to the Mary Wallopers on the TV instead. pick up a copy anyway, so it makes sense to make this an online only edition so that you can still see the photos I took in March.

I went to the Flying Dutchman on the afternoon of Sunday 15th March to play pool with Lesley, but before we could rack up, they announced on TV that all bars, restaurants and coffeeshops had to close at 18:00 that day! In panic, I ran round the corner to Prix D'Ami to stock up with 5 grams of white widow before they closed and by the time I'd been served, the queue outside was huge. It was the same all over the country and after 18:00, street dealers suddenly appeared everywhere, so the about 18 months ago; sadly, there will be no government changed their mind overnight and coffeeshops were allowed to open the next day, but only for takeaway.

Spare a thought for Jamie, who took this selfie with Frankie, Lesley, me and Tineke behind him; his flight from the UK to Lanzarote was cancelled so he decided to come to "Open" Amsterdam instead. First stop after taking the train from Schiphol was the Flying Dutchman, but within 20 minutes of getting there, the big shutdown was announced on TV!

We're living in strange times! This will Helena came to town for Paddy's Day, but be the first time the Amsterdam Stun is not because everywhere was closed, we had a available on paper, but with everywhere mini-party at my place with live music from

I saw the Mary Wallopers in Molly Malone's more live music in Molly's! The corona virus was bad enough, but then they got a report that the foundations are so rotten, the building isn't safe and it will take about a year to fix them, so they've had to close down permanently.

The cover is a guy I saw practicing social distancing in Vondelpark, with no football to talk about, Frank has got a quiz for you, the Gig List has links to musicians playing at home and the Joke Page has a lock-down theme, so enjoy this strange edition of the Stun.

STUN GIG-LIST

With all the music venues closed, a lot of musicians have turned to broadcasting One of Amsterdam's finest blues guitarists, performances live on Facebook; here are some of our favourites.

Maloe Melo Must Stay

Some of Amsterdam's finest musicians have been performing in weekly fundraisers to help Frontman Fred is performing every day, live Amsterdam's best live music venue, Maloe from his attic room. Melo, survive the shutdown.

Mosquito

The Stun's favourite band, Mosquito, have put on a couple of full shows from a secret location and more will follow until they can play in front of a real audience, whenever that may be.

Beno Sings Songs

A new (cover) song every day; "It's like Bono... Only better!"

www.fb.com/Beno.sings.songs

Great customer service in H. Murray's; when John Thomas's legs became too wobbly, Brian was more than happy to carry him out, and leave him in the gutter.

It's about time we had a photo of Bill and Adriaan propping up the bar in Coco's Outback.

Paula (Molly's) and Viivi (Mulligan's) were having an after-work drink in Rock On; sadly, only Mulligan's will reopen after lock-down.

Paul met up with the Warrington crew in Café Oporto just days before all the bars closed.

Danny paid a rare visit to see Jen in Café Oporto, and then the bars closed, so we haven't seen him since!

HE BARS

Jerry was celebrating his birthday in the Magpie, before social distancing became the new way of life.

Andy MacUnfraidh had a lot of gigs lined up around Paddy's Day, but this one in Molly Malone's was the only one that went ahead.

Even before the Corona Crisis struck, we knew Rock On was closing down. The final party couldn't go ahead, so I'm glad I made it there for the very last Rock Karaoke night. Jojo was on fine form, duetting with Tony.

Barman Pasquale had his own backing vocalists when he got up to sing.

Jojo also did a duet with Patrick, amongst others, but we haven't got room for more photos. We're going to miss Rock On, but not as much as Jojo; it was her dream come true!

BEHIND

Charlie was ready to rock, but then we got hit by the lock-down, so it's anybody's guess when we'll see live music in the Cave again!

The only way to pull off a lock-down afternoon 'quickie' with their eight year old son in the apartment was to send him out on the balcony with a Mars Bar and tell him to report on all the street activities. He began his commentary I've still not found a good breakfast wine! as his parents put their plan into operation:

Jordy, Gen and Zad in Excalibur were doing a roaring trade in bottles of Corona in the days leading up to the lock-down.

They were taking hygiene very serious in Molly Malone's, even if it did look like Steven was doing 'jazz hands' behind the bar.
